Money and the Early Greek Mind: Homer, Philosophy, Tragedy

Richard Seaford

Questioning the origins and shaping force of Greek philosophy, this is a major title: Money and the Early Greek Mind: Homer, Philosophy, Tragedy. How were the Greeks of the sixth century BC able to invent philosophy and tragedy? In this book Richard Seaford argues that a large part of the answer can be.